Meanwhile prophetic harps In every grove were ringing--War shall cease; Did ye not hear that Conquest is abjured Bring garlands, bring forth choicest flowers to deck The tree of Liberty! Liberty! I worshipped thee, and find thee but a shade! WOEDSWOKTH. It was one evening in this summer, towards the end of July, I well remember, the glorious sun was declining behind the distant hills, and the long shadows were spreading over the woods and meadows, when we saw at a distance a vehicle (usually employed to carry servants to town or church) returning at more than its usual speed. After some minutes the door of the drawing-room opened, and in burst Harry, William Priestleys brother, a youth of sixteen or seventeen, waving his hat, and crying out, Hurrah! Liberty, Reason, brotherly love for ever! Down with kingcraft and priestcraft. The Majesty of the People for ever! France is free, the Bastille is taken: William was there, and helping. I have just got a letter from him. He has put up the picture of the Bastille, and two stones from its ruins, for you, (addressing himself to me, ) which you will soon receive; but come, you must hear his letter. We all stood thunderstruck. After composure was a little restored, he read an account of the event. Such was the first announcement, to us, of the bursting of that tempest which had long been gathering in France, and which finally overthrew...
