Not illustrated. 1872 edition. Excerpt: .Here-lie the bones, the soul is fled, Of him this grave has crammed; We shrink not to pronounce him dead, Though some pronounce him d d. Nor wonder, traveller, when you see Such lines upon his grave. A greater rogue, convinced are we, Ne er tossed was by a wave. Nor stop this epitaph will here, And truth s invectives spare; We re sure a greater villain ne er Yet breathed the liquid air. Base envy closed his wrinkled years, Although he wealth p;ssessed; And that he spurned the widow s tears Must truly be confessed. The orphan s cry could rouse him not To sympathise with grief--A sordid liar and a sot, Ne er known to give relief. Oft females young, it may be told. Fell victims to his flame; Through pimps he bribed with tempting gold For to decoy the same. He sneered at all from home who flee For succour in distress; Nor the benighted traveller he One night did e er caress. Twas at the midnight hour his plan To ruin and betray; For yon bright sun that cheereth can Threw barriers in his way. Smiled when he found beneath his thong Defenceless man to cringe; Where he sustained the slightest wrong, Still prone was for revenge. Deep in his heart deceit did dwell--For through his veins it ran--And all the treacherous vice of hell That could defile the man. He ne er was seen by human eye Within the house ...
