Reviews

The publication is great and fantastic. It is probably the most remarkable book i actually have read through. Its been printed in an exceedingly easy way and it is merely right after i finished reading through this publication where in fact altered me, modify the way i think.

An anonymous friend has sent us the following lines which, presuming on the author's permission, we insert in this place. THE SCEPTIC'S DREAM. It was the Festival of St. Clement. I was at Home, and wandering with a friend among the stately ruins of the Colosseum. The gentle autumnal breeze brought to our ears the sound of distant church bells. said my friend, you, > I replied, the church itself is interesting, I grant > you, from its ancient architecture and frescoes, but as a > work of art alone, at least to me. The legendary meanings > of the paintings on its walls, are to me as mythical as the > history of Romulus and Remus. No, I leave such puerilities > to women and children. > with you, > was the answer, opening his English Prayer-book, Sunday. I fancied you might venerate a church in which the > remains repose of a Saint commemorated by our Communion, > and he pointed to the line in the Kalendar, marked Nov. 23, St. Clement Bp. and Martyr. I answered, in all Communion are much the same to me. I went to church > last Sunday because the rest of my party did so; but you > must not take for granted in consequence that such is my > habit. Christianity may have effected much, I do not say it > has not, but civilization has done more, and we of the 19...
