Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: . known as a purely commercial city; Birmingham and Manchester in England are mentioned in rather contemptuous way because they have never gone in for the finer side of life. Chicago, which is now beginning to be known for its Friends of American Art, for a long time enjoyed the questionable distinction of being simply a wonderful business center. The thing that gives distinction to Paris and Dresden on the other hand is the fact that they are art centers. No city in the middle west should have the spot light for the progress she is making, more than Detroit, and the Board of Commerce has done much to herald this city throughout the world, not only as a commercial center, but as a beautiful city where life is worth living. To this should be added the distinction that it is an art center. With the added prosperity of Detroit there should be ample support for a number of good resident painters, and added interest in all things artistic. LECTURES. The Sunday afternoon talks began the first Sunday in November, and are proving as popular as in former years, the crying need of more room in the auditorium, being the only thing to mar their great success. The Director is taking up this year a popular series of lectures on individual or groups of painters taken in connection with their surroundings and environment. Owing to the illness of the regular speaker, the services of Prof. N....
