Bush, Lieutenant of Marines, Who Was Killed on Board the Frigate Constitution, During Her Engagement With the British Frigate Guerrier, on the 19th August, 1812 Had I for the subject of my story the veteran warrior of the revolution-whose sear-indentured breast bore attestation of his presence with embattled hosts-I should have found, in the variety of circumstance incident upon a course of lustrous events, a sufficiency of narrative to interest the feelings of my brethren. Or, were I endowed with the fascinating powers of an orator, I might presume, by the force of eloquence, to command the attention which I am now compelled to solicit. Eulogy of the dead, in modern days, has nearly lost its force. Panegyric is blazoned forth to depict ideal virtues, which had been else unknown. Merit is confounded with baseness-honour with disgrace. Praise and encomium are indiscriminately lavished upon the virtuous and the immoral citizen. The laboured and pompous tribute of respect is now no longer viewed as a record of the public regret, but is regarded as the mere ebullition of sorrow, experienced by an honest heart, blind to the frailties and vices of his friend.
